

Dear Sir,

I am writing to comment on the exemption that has been granted to television and radio stations from the Do Not Call Registration.

This is entirely inconsistent. These calls are definitely solicitations. Why else would they call? Therefore they should be treated as all other telemarketing calls, and be banned. It is extremely annoying to be interrupted on a quiet evening by someone trying to get me to listen to some stupid radio station that will then try to sell me stuff through their ads.

I do sincerely appreciate the Do-Not-Call-Me registry and commend you for it. But lets go ahead and do it right if we do it at all.

Sincerely,
Jonathan Brenneman
